"There is a Dadasaheb Phalke in all of us," says Anand Pandit

And then went on to make 95 features and 27 shorts in just 19 years? He is the reason why we have come this far and he is still the wellspring of inspiration for us all. The maker known for his mythological works like Mohini Bhasmasu, Satyavan Savitri, Lanka Dahari, and Sri Krishna Janma created the cinematic template that was followed by many other makers subsequently and says Pandit, "There is a Dadasaheb Phalke in all of us. All of us want to be celebrated as pioneers, break new ground and create a legacy that will be remembered forever but it is near impossible even today to do one percent of what he did all those decades ago with such limited means." Pandit believes his expertise came from his multifaceted talent and says, "When we make films, it is important to have an artist's eye and technical proficiency and Dadasaheb was an artist and a technical whiz. (19-10)

Ahmedabad, The father of Indian cinema, Dhrundiraj Govind Phalke or Dadasaheb Phalke passed away on 16 February 1944 but even today the influence of this iconic producer, director, and screenwriter on subsequent generations, remains unsurpassed. Veteran producer Anand Pandit has great admiration for the pioneer and says, "Can you imagine that Dadasaheb made India's first full-length feature film back in 1913 without a single precedent?"
